

Reading the New Testament Annually

Prepared by Dr. John E. Marshall

The following is a systematic way to read the New Testament in one year. Each quarter begins with one of the Gospels; each month has proportionate readings.

January through March

Matthew, Hebrews, and James are three heavily Jewish writings.

Also read Romans. Paul wrote about 25% of the New Testament, second only to Luke.

January, Matthew 1-19

February, Matthew 20-28, Hebrews

March, James, Romans

April through June

Mark, I and II Peter, and Jude, books heavily influenced by Simon Peter, account for about 11% of the New Testament.

Also read I Corinthians to Philippians.

April, Mark

May, I and II Peter, Jude, I Corinthians

June, II Corinthians to Philippians

July through September

Luke and Acts were penned by Luke, who wrote 27% of the New Testament, more than any other author. He was the only Gentile to write a Bible book.

July, Luke 1-16

August, Luke 17-24, Acts 1-10

September, Acts 11-28

October through December

John, I, II, and III John, and Revelation were written by the apostle, John the Beloved, who wrote about 200/0 of the New Testament.

Also read Colossians to Philemon.

October, John 1-17

November, John 18-21, I, II, and III John, Revelation 1-17

December, Revelation 18-21, Colossians to Philemon.
